From the madding crowd they stand apart, The maidens four and the work of Art; And none might tell from sight alone In which had Culture ripest grown-The Gotham Million fair to see, The Philadelphia Pedigree, The Boston Mind of azure hue, Or the soulful Soul from Kalamazoo-For all leved Art in a seemly way, With an earnest soul and a capital A.

Long they worshipped; but no one broke

The Western one from the nameless place,

Whe, blushing, said: "What a lovely vase."

The sacred stillness, until up spoke

Over three faces a sad smile flew,

And they edged away from Kalamazoe. But Gotham's haughty soul was stirred To crush the stranger with one small word. Deftly hiding reproof in praise, She cries: "Tis, inde: 1 a lovely vaze!" But brief her unworthy triumph, when The lofty one from the house of Penn, With a consciou, ess of two grandpapas, Exclaims: "It is quite a lovely vahs!" And glances round with an anxious thrill, Awaiting the word of Beacon Hill. But the Boston maid smiles courteouslee, And gently murmurs: "Oh, parden me! I did not catch your remark, because I was so entranced with that charming vawa!" -James Jeffrey Roche in Life.
